

Privacy policy

The administration of the Cloud of Knowledge project (further the Project) is respectful to the rights of users of the Project. We unconditionally recognize importance of confidentiality of personal information of users of the Project. This page contains the information about what information we obtain and we collect when you use applications of the Project. We hope that these data will help you to make conscious decisions on the personal information provided to us.

The real Privacy policy (further Policy) extends only to the website "Cloud of Knowledge" (further the Website), the web applications and mobile applications functioning in the Cloud of Knowledge project (further Applications). The policy extends only to information collected by Applications. It does not extend on any other websites, mobile or web applications and it is not applicable to resources of the third parties from which references to our Applications can be made.

Collection of information

When you use the Website or the Application, we define a name of the domain of your provider and the country, transitions from one page to another, a resource from which you passed to our Website or the Application.

Data which we receive from the Website and Applications can be used to facilitate to you use of the Website and Applications, including without limitation:

- organization of the Website and Applications in the way, most convenient for users,
- providing an opportunity to subscribe to a mailing group on special offers and subjects if you want to receive such notifications.

Applications collect only personal information which you provide voluntarily at visit or registration on the Website and in Applications. The concept "personal information" includes information which defines you as the particular person, for example, your name or the e-mail address.

The website applies cookies technology ("cookies") to creation of statistical reporting. "Cookies" are represented by the small data volume sent by the website which the browser of your computer saves on the hard drive of your computer. "cookies" contains information which can be necessary for the Website — for saving of your installations of options of viewing and collecting statistical information on the Website i.e. what pages you visited that was loaded, a name of the domain of Internet service provider and the country of the visitor and also the address of third-party websites from which transition to the Website and is made further. However all this information is not connected with you as with the personality in any way. "Cookies" do not write your e-mail address and any personal data concerning you.

Besides, we use standard log-books of the Web server for calculation of number of visitors and assessment of technical capabilities of our Website. We use this information to define how many people visit the Site and to organize pages in the way, most convenient for users, to provide compliance of the Website to the used browsers, and to make contents of our pages the most useful to our visitors. We write data on movements on the Website, but not about certain visitors of the Website so no specific information concerning you personally will be saved or used by Administration of the Project without your consent.

To browse material without "cookies", you can configure the browser so that it did not accept "cookies" or notified you on their sending (are different therefore we advise you to consult in the section "Help" and to find out how to change installations of the machine on "cookies").

Sharing of information

The administration of the Project under no circumstances does not sell and does not give to use your personal information to any third parties. We also do not disclose the personal information provided by you except for cases, stipulated by the legislation to the Russian Federation.

Disclaimer

You remember, information transfer of personal character at visit of the third-party websites, including the websites of the partner companies even if the website contains the reference to the Website and Applications or on the Website and Applications is the link to these websites, does not fall under actions of this document. The administration of the Project does not bear responsibility for actions of other websites and mobile applications. Process of collecting and information transfer of personal character at visit of these websites is regulated by the document "Information Protection of Personal Character" or similar, located on the websites of these companies.